

A past president of the State Bar of New Mexico, Arturo L. Jaramillo was a senior director and trial lawyer for 26 years with the Santa Fe law firm of Jones, Snead, Wertheim, Wentworth and Jaramillo P.A. He is currently the Cabinet Secretary of the New Mexico General Services Department. Mr. Jaramillo chaired the original Task Force on Minorities in the Profession from its inception in 1987, and is presently the co-chair of the Standing Committee on Diversity in the Profession.

Mr. Jaramillo has developed and presented numerous continuing legal education and executive management training programs centered on the competencies of emotional intelligence, social and self-perception and strategic communication. Arturo has been married to Jayne Jaramillo for 30 years and has two children, Matthew, a stock broker age 28 and Vanessa, a professional makeup artist, age 25.